STANDARD TERMS

These terms follow the standard terms of form RTB-1 under the Residential Tenancy Act (BC).

1. Application of the Residential Tenancy Act

The terms of this tenancy agreement and any changes or additions to it must comply with the Residential Tenancy Act and regulations. If a term does not comply, it is void. Any change or addition to this agreement must be agreed to in writing and initialled by both the landlord and the tenant, and must be reasonable. The landlord must give the tenant a copy of this agreement promptly, and in any event within 21 days of entering into the agreement.

2. Security deposit and pet damage deposit

The tenant must pay the security deposit and any pet damage deposit as set out in section 6 above. The landlord must not require a security deposit or pet damage deposit greater than half of the monthly rent, and must not require the tenant to pay both deposits totalling more than one month's rent. The right of the tenant to the return of a deposit may be affected by failing to participate in a condition inspection or failing to provide a forwarding address in writing within one year of the end of the tenancy.

3. Condition inspections

The landlord and tenant must inspect the condition of the rental unit together at the start and end of the tenancy, and when a pet damage deposit is first collected part-way through a tenancy. The landlord must complete a condition inspection report (form RTB-27) at each inspection and give the tenant a copy. The right of the landlord to claim against a deposit, or of the tenant to its return, may be extinguished by failing to meet inspection obligations under the Act.

4. Payment of rent

The tenant must pay the rent on time. If rent is unpaid, the landlord may issue a notice to end the tenancy, which may take effect not earlier than 10 days after the notice is given. The landlord must give the tenant a receipt for rent paid in cash. The landlord must return any post-dated cheques remaining at the end of the tenancy. The tenant may deduct from rent only amounts the landlord has agreed to in writing or an arbitrator has ordered may be deducted.

5. Rent increases

Once every 12 months the landlord may increase the rent for the current tenant. The landlord may only increase the rent 12 months after the date the existing rent was established or last increased. The landlord must use the approved notice-of-rent-increase form and give the tenant at least 3 whole months' notice. The increase must not exceed the amount permitted under the regulation, unless the tenant agrees in writing or an arbitrator orders otherwise.

6. Assign or sublet

The tenant may assign or sublet the rental unit with the landlord's written consent. If this tenancy is for a fixed term of 6 months or more, the landlord must not unreasonably withhold consent. Under an assignment, a new tenant takes over the rights and obligations under this agreement, with the landlord's consent.

7. Repairs

Landlord's obligations: The landlord must provide and maintain the rental unit in a reasonable state of decoration and repair, complying with health, safety and housing standards required by law, and making it suitable for occupation. Tenant's obligations: The tenant must maintain reasonable health, cleanliness and sanitary standards throughout the rental unit and property, and must repair damage caused by the actions or neglect of the tenant, the tenant's pet, or persons permitted on the property by the tenant. The tenant is not responsible for reasonable wear and tear. Emergency repairs: The landlord must post and maintain the name and phone number of the designated contact for emergency repairs. The tenant may have emergency repairs made (major leaks, blocked sewer, damaged locks, defective heat/plumbing/electricity, etc.) only when the tenant has made at least two attempts to reach the designated contact and given a reasonable time for the repairs to be made.

8. Occupants and guests

The landlord must not stop the tenant from having guests under reasonable circumstances, and must not impose restrictions or charges on guests. If the number of permanent occupants becomes unreasonable, the landlord may discuss the issue with the tenant and may serve a notice to end the tenancy; disputes may be resolved through the Residential Tenancy Branch.

9. Locks

Neither the landlord nor the tenant may change or add locks to the rental unit unless both agree, or an arbitrator has ordered otherwise. At the start of the tenancy the landlord must give the tenant keys or other means of access to the rental unit, and must not charge a fee for replacement keys unless the replacement is required because of a tenant's fault.

10. Landlord's entry into the rental unit

For the duration of this tenancy agreement, the rental unit is the tenant's home and the tenant is entitled to quiet enjoyment, reasonable privacy, and freedom from unreasonable disturbance. The landlord may enter the rental unit only if: the tenant consents at the time of entry; the landlord has given at least 24 hours' and not more than 30 days' written notice stating a reasonable purpose and a time between 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. (unless the tenant agrees otherwise); there is an emergency and entry is necessary to protect life or property; the tenant has abandoned the unit; the landlord provides housekeeping or related services and enters at a reasonable agreed time; or an arbitrator has ordered entry.

11. Ending the tenancy

The tenant may end a month-to-month tenancy by giving the landlord at least one clear month's written notice (received before the day rent is due, effective the last day of the following month). A fixed-term tenancy may not be ended by the tenant effective earlier than the end date of the term, except as the Act permits. The landlord may end the tenancy only for the reasons and by the process set out in the Residential Tenancy Act, using the approved notice forms. The landlord and tenant may also mutually agree in writing to end this tenancy agreement at any time. The tenant must vacate by 1 p.m. on the day the tenancy ends, unless agreed otherwise.

12. Resolving disputes

Either party may apply to the Residential Tenancy Branch for dispute resolution under the Residential Tenancy Act. Information: 1-800-665-8779 or gov.bc.ca/landlordtenant.
